In Brief, and to the Point. Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered aver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late heurs, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be,
have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

have made the American people's institution of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Finally tried Dr. King's Nev Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using a half-dozen bottles, found himself well and had no return of the disease. SENATOR'S RECREATIONS.

Men of the Nation Find Relaxation.

The Hon. A. P. Gorman finds unceasing delight in two games—polities and base ball. Of the former he has had a surfeit lately. Now he looks for amusement to the diamond, and seldom misses a contest at the National Park

National Park.
Senator Butler, of South Carolina, Senator Butler, of South Carolina, is a devoted admirer of the drama, especially when the play is of that order which relies for success more on the beauty of its scenery, female and otherwise, than on literary ment or able acting. When once the pretty girl of the play comes upon the stage he is totally lost to all else, and never lowers his glasses till she disappears.

Senator Hewell Jackson, of Tennessee, contributes more to the sup-port of the drama than any other man in public life. Four nights a week at the theater is not an unusual average for him. Opera is his especial delight.

Senator Ingalls is fond of comedy. He has a keen appreciation of humor, more particularly the subtle humor of some old English comedies. There is no public man who has a keener sense of the ridiculous, and no man can show his enjoyment by a heartier

Senator Call, of Florida, attends the theater quite frequently, but has only once or twice been known to smile, and even on those memorable occasions the smiles are said to have come in at the wrong place. A joke is something that the Florida Senator has never been able to comprehend A pun is just so much Choctaw to him.

A pun is just so much Choctaw to him.

Senator Frye is seen more frequently in the billiard room than at the theater. He is an excellent shot, sometimes making runs of fifteen in a three-ball game. He likes riding, too, and takes delight in displaying his little grand-daughter, who invariably occupies a position on his knee during his drives.

The crack billiardist of Congress is Warner Miller. The Senator from

The crack billiardist of Congress is Warner Miller. The Senator from New York handles a cue as gracefully as Slosson, and thinks it nothing to run up thirty points in an inning. He is fond of society, in which he shines on account of his polished manners. In the Senate, however, he is utterly lost, and seems to be in a constant state of wonder at the unaccountable freak of fortune the unaccountable freak of fortune the unit untable freak of fortune that put him there.

Senator Bowen, of Colorado, gained a wide reputation at home as a poker player, nor has his fame diminished since his advent into poker circles in Washington. When he sits down for a game he assumes the innocent expression of the "Heathen Chinee," and can manipulate the cards quite as successfully as Bret Harte's hero. Like all men of genius, he is modest, never playing except when pressed; but once into it and he can scrape up more flushes than any player known.

but once into it and he can scrape up more flushes than any player known. Senator Coke's favorite recreation is hunting upold books in the Capitol Library and in the book stores about town. With a tattered book and at very bad cigar he passes his leisure hours, varying occasionally by sub-stituting some Lone Star whisky for the cigar.

One of the leading pedestrians of Washington is Senator Jones, of Florida. His towering figure is familiar to all the residents of northwest Washington.

John Sherman seems to relish no

Senator Vest admires athletic sports. He was quite a famous athlete himself in the days of his reporter's life in Kentucky. High living has since taken the elasticity out of his body and robbed his once well-turned limbs of their suppleness. He is still a tolerable billiard player, however, and occasionally displays his skill in the hotel pool rooms.

Wade Hampton is a personal friend of John McCullough and Lawrence Barrett. When these actors are in the city he is one of their first callers. He has given dinners in their honor both here and at his home, and is a regular attendant at their performances.

almost a hermit now, fiving a retired life, and never appearing at places of amusement.

Mr. Ransom, of North Carolina, wears a button-hole bouquet summer and winter, is very proud of his good figure, and indulges freely in the pleasures of society.

Senator Fair finds pleasure in giving costly dinners, which display his enormous wealth.

Mr. Edmund's principal sources of amusement are musical and literary entertainments.

Senator Morrill, the best preserved septuagenarian I know, owes his excellent condition to a quiet life, void of anything like dissipation.

Senator Plumb regards newspaper writing as a recreation, and indulges in it freely for the benefit of his Kansas organ.

The new Senators who came in last session, are rather a solemn set. They include such men as Spooner, the skeletonian railroad lawyer; Eustis, the cranky Louisianian; and Chare, the Rhode Island Quaker.—[Philadelphia Times.]

INFANTILE SKIN DISEASES

Our oldest child, now six years of age, when an infant six months old was attaked with a virulent, malgnant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physian, who steempt d to cure it; out it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid resh, ugly, painful, blotced, and malicion. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we wre advised to try the CUTICHA REMEDIES. The effect was simply marveil and Intra or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and heat thy as though he had never been attacked. In my optaion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to day he is a strong, healthy child, per ectly we'll, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred.

... M ARCH 8, 1688

A CORRESPONDENT writing in the Walker Lake Bulletin, says: Nevada, not unlike her neighboring states and territories, is continually seeing little towns spring up in the valleys and among the mountains, only to see them deserted and abandoned within a few years. To one unacquainted with such sights naturally comes the question: "What is the cause of all this?" Am I wrong when I say that it is because the people of the State have gone too much to mining? In 1858 when the famous Comstock lode was discovered the civilized portion of the population was not more than 1,000. As soon, bowever, as the vast resources of the famous lode were known to the people of outside states the population began to swell very rapidly by a class of people who came undoubtedly with the same motives that brought the early inhabitants to America, namely, to get immensely rich in a short time, without labor. Naturally they would settle where they thought their chances were best to obtain this wealth. What was the result? First settled here, to-morrow a new discovery, made in another region, they as quickly moved and left their houses unoccupied. Was it not this shiftless and feverish element that caused all these desertions? I do not mean to say that all her people of to-day are such-but I fear that to too great an extent it is still true-because we now see towns of a more substantial nature building up outside of the mining camps.

This brings me to a recond question-What is Nevada's great need? Let me answer that it is more agriculturists. It is conceded by all that the soil in the valleys is fertile enough to produce anything that can exist in this climate, when properly watered and cultivated, and the difficulty in obtaining water seems to be the only obstacle which prevents the turning of the now barren valleys into green fields of grain and grasses. How then are we to over-come this obstacle? We know that the mountains rise from 1,000 to 8,000 feet above the included valleys and near the summits of many of them burst forth never failing springs, producing large streams of water, and should these springs prove insufficient when developed and distributed over the valleys by systematic order, there seems to be no good reason why abundance ot be had by boring to no very great depth. In fact, the height of the mountains and the trend of the strata of rocks almost tell us that by boring, water is a certainty. When the people take more to agriculture I road does not send out a passenger firmly believe that Nevada will witness a growth yet unknown in her history, and that no longer will little deserted towns stand in her valleys. It will prove both benevally and the bard to have a content of the cont ficial to her wealth and to her society. And then, when the quesasked, "What makes Nevada so desirable?" we can change our answer from her "superior climate"-for most any unlearned philosopher knows that the buman race cannot subsist on climate alone—to "her superior agricultural wealth and advantages."

MAJOR J. F. HANSON, the largest cotton manufacturer in Georgia, in an interview in the Philadelphia Press, says: "The fear of negro morning received from C. P. Hunt-supremacy is ever present with a North may think this senseless, but I merely state the fact in exwhich is a curse to our people and a national evil. But for its existsolve as easily as a rope of sand. It will be a long while before the Solid South will divide between the Present political parties, unless the Republicans change their methods. They have a sound policy on revenue, fluence, industrial devel-opment and liberal expenditures for public works and sea-coast defenses, a money bounty to the merchant marine and the like, but the South will be slow to join with them so long as their teachings tend to transfer the control of our city, county and state affairs from the white race to the negroes. The race question presses on one hand; the issue between free trade and protection challenges us on the other. We are literally between the devil and the deep sea."

Mrs. C. S. McLain, who has be siting relatives here for some ti-tal, departed this morning for l one in Canada.

Emperor of Germany About to Cross the Dark River. BERLIN, March 7 .- The condition of Emperor William is unsatisfactory. Prince Bismarck, General Von Moltke and the court physicians are present at the palace. It is reported that the closing of the Reichstag will be postponed in consequence of the condition of the Emperor.

The Reichstager publishes the following bulletin, which has been issued by the Emperor's physicians: "To the general symptoms of cold which have affected the Emperor since Saturday, together with the affection of the museous membrane of the throat GIRL WANTED AT HENRY MOR mb8-iw. and irritation of the membrane of the eyelids, has been added during the eyelids, has been added during the past few days painful abdominal disorders, which have occurred frequently since yesterday. The Emperor's appetite is materially diminishing, owing to which there is a marked decrease in his strength."

The dectors are anxious on account of the Emperor's rapidly declining strength. Last night the Emperor had a serious fainting fit—the second during his present illness. Late this evening he asked for food, and after partaking of it felt refreshed. It is stated that in addition to kidney affection the Emperor is suffering from intion the Emperor is suffering from in-tense pain, due to inflammation of the parts affected by the rupture which he parts affected by the rupture which he suffered some time ago.

At midnight there was no change for the worse, but not until now has the Emperor been unable to sleep. The Emperor talked a little with his aidede-camp, but his mind wandered some that. It is stated that it is impossible to administer remedies, and that his recovery depends upon his recuperative powers, Another fainting fit would probably prove fatal.

BERLIN, March 8 .- From midnight on the Emperor slowly failed, and at an early hour the immediate relatives were called to his bedside in the hope were called to his bedside in the hope that the dying King would give some sign of recognition or returning consciousness. Every effort was made by the attending physician to keep alive the faint spark of life, but without avail, and shortly after 7 o'clock the warrior king breathed his last. His passing away can be compared to that of a child going to sleep. A long drawn sign, a testless movement and the spark of life had fied.

The news has been received throughout Germany with the greatest grief, for while the people knew that his life hung but by a thread and were in a measure prepared for his death, yet when the final summons came the blow was not lessened by the knowledge.

NEVADA'S DELEGATION IN CONGRESS.

State Meeting With Recogni-tion-Personal Gossip. Special Corres; ondence GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, March 2, 1888. EDITOR GAZETTE-Were it not the capital of the nation Washington would be but a country town, a way-side inn among the swamp lands along the Potomac. As it is, it is the prettiest city in America, if not in the world. Were it not for the sittings of Congress less interest would attach to the place than to a "Sleepy Hollow" made famous by the pen of an Irving. But now over 400 legislators, representing every part of our country are here; hundreds of other persons or Congressional attaches and thousand of visitors. Other cities show their activity in summer but sleep in winter; not so Washington. Since the opening of Congress early in December, all has been life and bustle, the harvest season of the Washingtonian.

NEVADA'S DELEGATION. Nevada has reason to be proud of her delegation in Congress. Jones and Stewart each have great legislative ability and each in his way is an effective legislator; together they make a Senatorial team which has a bigger "pull" here in Washington than any similar team sent DEFOT HOTEL.—JH Ersenback, San While less imposing, Senator Stewart's present residence, at 1707 Rhode Island avenue, is one of the most elegantly furnished and one of the most hospitable homes in this city. Senator and Mrs. Jones and Senator and Mrs. Stewart are Nethis city. Senator and Mrs. Jones and Senator and Mrs. Stewart are Nevada's "big four," and for ability, culture, hospitality and influence, a similar four canuot be found in Washington. Four and one make five, and Nevada's fifth, the Hon. William Woodburn, is another creditable representative of the battle-born State. The force of cierks is now at work on the approvals of Nevada land They have taken up lists involving over 422,000 acres. It is said in the office by those in charge that 300,000 acres will be passed upon within sixty days; in any event in this matter it is now Nevada first and the world afterward. I have had drawn up a resolution, and had it signed by the Secretary of the Interior, to the effect that in this department it is necessary to have ten more clerks for two years. Yeatoriay it went to the Senate and the amount necessary to employ the extra force will be incorporated in the urgency deficiency bill now pending, providing our Representatives can incorporate it in the same, and they are sure they can. This accomplished, Nevada need expect no more delays in land approvals in the General Land Office. I have found by examination that in the exercise of so-called economy, by the lack of a sufficient number of clerks in this department, there is practically a loss to the various states annually of over $150,000, and to Nevada alone a loss of $45,000. Acting Commissioner Stockslager is awake to the importance of this matter and exerting his influence in favor of an adequate force of clerks and of expediting business in his department.

The company has been the target for considerable abuse, but if the chronic kickers would only make a tour of inspection, see the damage done, and the great amount of work and money expended by it in its and money expended by it in its efforts to keep faith with the public, they would soon change their tactics and instead of cursing would lift their voices up in sympathy.

Probably the finest piece of en graving that has ever been executed in Nevada can now be seen at the jewelry establishment of R. Herzon Virginia street. The work of art, for such it is, is an engraved picture of Mr. J. R. Mason on the inside case of a gold watch, and the counterfeit presentment can be at once identified by even the most casual acquaintance. The lights and shades of the features and hair are admirably reproduced, and the work stamps the engraver, Otto Herz, as a master of his profession.

After Many Years. To-day, for the first time in thirty-five years, Mrs. A. A. Longley had the pleasure of greeting her brother, they having become separated when both were children. The name of the brother is B. S. Higgins, a prosperous cattleman of Custer, Moutana. He arrived here last evening, and this morning went out to the ranch of Mrs. Longley, intending to take her by sur-prise, and that he was successful there can be no doubt.

A Mean Thing.

The following from the Truckee Republican should be treated with the contempt it so richly dererves:

Who couldn't be beat at casino;
She'd rope suckers in
And win all their "tin,"
Till they thought they were playing at

The proprietor is now ready to receive proposals for lots in Powning's Addition. The map gives a good idea of the Tract, which is situated between the Central Pacific Railroad and the Truckee River, and commences on the west at a point three blocks distant from Virginia street, making it the most central and convenient of any portion of the rapidly growing town of Reno. Unlike any other part of the town, this addition faces the beautiful Truckee River, and Riverside avenue is certain to become the fashionable driveway of the country. The streets are 80 feet wide, while Riverside and Keystone avenues are intended to be 100 feet in width. All alleys are 20 feet wide. The soil is a rich gravelly loam, and susceptible of the highest state of cultivation. Being situated as it is, it is more exempt from fire than any other section. The regular lots are 50x140 feet. The sewerage is perfect.

Before buying eleewhere, Parties will do well to look at these Lots.

Sam Patch, the father of the jumping business, rivals Charley Ross as a household character. He made his first leap at Niagara Falls October 6, 1829, from a rock seventy feet above the water. That didn't hurt him much, and on the 17th of the same month he made a second leap from a scaffold at the foot of the Biddle staircase. At the foot of the Biddle staircase. At the foot of the stairs Sam Patch rigged up a ladder 100 feet high, climbed to the top, and then jumped down into the water, to show, as he said, that some things could be done as well as others. Then he went to the Genesee Falls and made a leap on November 26, 1829, less than a week before he made the jump which killed him. Sam Patch's leap at Passaic Falls was September 30, 1827. He jumped from the foot of the whitened pine on the edge of the precipice overhanging the basin. He bounded off with a great leap and struck the water, eighty or ninety feet below, feet first. He swam ashore. Many Paterson boys afterward safely followed Patch's example in making the leap.

This account of Sam Patch's last the leap.

This account of Sam Patch's last leap is taken from Mr. Henry B. Stanton's "Recollections:"
"Sam Patch, the famous jumper and diver, came to Rochester in the fall, we will say, of 1828, and proposed to leap from the falls in the heart of the village. On the day fixed Sam appeared. The banks of the river as far as the eye could reach the day in the special says. were lined with spectators. He was dressed in a suit of white, and I will state for the benefit of other fools of the same class that before he leaped he placed his hands firmly on his loins, then sprang from the shelving rock, and went down straight as an rock, and went down straight as an arrow. He came up feet foremost, and swam ashore amid the shouts of thousands. A few days later he proposed to leap again. He erected a scaffold 25 feet high on the brink of the falls, making the descent 125 feet. On the day named another immense throng assembled. Mr. Weed and I happened to meet at the foot of the scaffold. Patch came dressed as before, and: apparently, a little under the influence of liquor. As he ascended the scaffold Mr. Weed left, but I remained. As Patch went down his arms were all in a whirl, down his arms were all in a whiri, and he struck the water with a stunning splash. The crowd waited for hours. He did not rise. The next spring the mangled remains of the poor wretch were found at the foot of the falls at Carthage, four miles below."

When Sam made this last leap he was so drunk that he could barely stand. But he could make a speech, and he did. It was:

and he did. It was:

"Napoleon was a great man and a great general. He conquered armies and he conquered nations, but he couldn't jump the Genesee Falls. Wellington was a great man and a great soldier. He conquered Napoleon, but he couldn't jump the Genesee Falls. That was left for me to do, and I can do it and will."

HOW DONALDSON DID IT.

Mr. R. Donaldson, a Scotchman, who is in the saddlery business at 60 Warren Street, made two successful jumps from High Bridge, on August warren Street, made two successful jumps from High Bridge, on August 12 and 18, 1880. He was 'rought up in Sunderland, England, and began early by jumping from dock-walls and the sides of vessels. Then he went higher, to bowsprits and mainyards, then to the Sunderland Bridge, and finally from the royal yard of the ship Charity of Liverpool, a height of 140 feet. He was alone when he first jumped at High Bridge, and wore a suit of tights. The police thought he was a suicide, and ran to catch him, but he jumped before they could reach him. He was not molested on his second trial, and a large crowd watched him. His fall took 4½ seconds. The height was 124 feet, and the water 10 feet deep. After striking he skimmed under the water for a distance of fourteen feet. A brisk wind had slightly disturbed his equilibrium on the second trial, and he struck partly on his hip, but was not injured.

In describing his actions and sensations, Mr. Donaldson said last evening:—

sations, Mr. Donaldson said last evening:—

"I placed my feet closely together and spread my hands, palms upward, before my face. I then doubled up and sprang gently forward just far enough to clear the bridge. I held my head forward and shut my eyes. I paid no attention to my breathing; that never occasions any trouble, and all this talk about losing breath when falling is nonsense. As I went down I straightened out naturally, and the wind rushed up past me at a terrible rate. The shock on my arms and chin was as if I had been struck with a board.

"I don't think that Odlum knew much about jumping, as he told a reporter that if he felt himself losing his balance he would double up. He couldn't do it. A man ha as helpless as a baby when in the aft. He can not double up or do anything else. He must start right at first, and then, unless there is a strong wind, nothing is likely to happen to him. I am told that he held one arm above his head. That was very foolish, as it would naturally destroy his balance. He was a clerk at Williard's Hotel, Washington, during the winter, and a teacher of swimming at Hygeia Hotel, Old Point Comfort, in summer. He was not married, and lived with his unther and sisters.—

OTHER JUMPS.

During the Centennial year a young French rope-walker entertained the thousands of persons who visited Niagara Falls by leaping into the river two or three times a week, from a rope stretched from bank to bank 155 feet above the surface of the water. A piece of stout and very elastic rubber was fastened to the center of his heavy rope, and, after walking out on the rope, from the river's bank, the young Frenchman would take a firm hold of the free end of the rubber band and spring downward. He retained his nold of the band until it had stretched perhaps twenty-five feet, and then lotting go, he would shoot feet foremost, like an arrow into the river. This feat was repeated more than a dozen times, and the performer was in nowise injured.

"for the drinks" with rome of his companions that he would jump off High Bridge. He walked to the central arch of the bridge, and after divesting himself of his coat and shoes, he sprang from the structure. In his descent he turned two somersaults, and struck the water feet foremost. He was taken out of the river unconscious, but subsequently recovered. The distance from the top of the bridge to the water where Brumley jumped is 145 feet.

A young Englishman named L. P. Donaldson dived from the roof of a shed on the pier of the National Steamship Line, at the foot of West Houston Street, on September 1, 1833. The distance from the top of the shed to the river was thirty-five feet. The feat was witnessed by a large number of persons. The diver was not injured.—[New York Times.
